

DAY 20

UNLIMITED ...

MY BEAUTIFUL MESS

Kristina Veasey is a visual artist who likes to flip negatives into positives, and find beauty in the mundane. Today's challenge is inspired by Kristina's installation exploring housework, where she uses repeating images of mess and dirt to print vibrant patterns on wallpaper and furniture.

Do

Take a photograph of something in your home from a new angle. Make your mess beautiful! Zoom in close, or find a perspective that makes it look abstract or different. Can you get a closer view of the cobwebs on the skirting? Or see the patterns made by the dishes in the sink? Take notice of your surroundings and find the beauty in the mess!

If you have more time...

Take two photos, one from your new angle and one that shows the object clearly.

Share your first image and see if people can identify your object, then share the second for your big reveal.

Think

How do you feel about household chores?

Did you find beauty in your mess?
